

EMDEN, TERROR, DRIVEN ASHORE AND BURNED

German Cruiser Has Been Preying on Shipping of the Allies Ever Since the Outbreak of the War, Has Destroyed $4,000,000, Exclusive of Cargoes.

MOST OF THE DAMAGE DONE TO BRITISH

Official Announcement Was Made in London of the Fate of the Emden, Losses Among Her Officers and Crew Reported to Have Been Very Heavy.

London, Nov. 10, 12:51 p. m.—It was officially announced to-day that the German cruiser Emden has been driven ashore and burned. The losses among the officers and crew of the Emden are reported to have been very heavy.

The Emden was destroyed in the Bay of Bengal by the Australian cruiser Sydney. She was driven ashore on an island of the Cocos group. The Sydney sighted the Emden yesterday morning, and with superior speed she easily closed up and gave battle. There was a running fight, at the end of which the Emden was unable to escape and, burning from the shells of the Australian boat, was beached. The casualties on the Sydney were slight.

The Emden has contributed to the history of the war one of the most remarkable chapters. Twenty-two ships, mostly British, have been sunk and one has been captured by the cruiser since early in August. Most of the time the Emden preyed on British shipping in the Indian ocean. The vessels destroyed by her totaled in value $4,000,000, exclusive of their cargoes.

Another Cruiser Bottled Up

It also was officially announced to-day that the German cruiser Koenigsburg, which disabled the British cruiser Pegasus some weeks ago, has been bottled up at Mafia island on the coast of German East Africa by the blocking of the channel to the harbor.

CRUISER GLASGOW SIGHTED.

Accompanying Transport Otranto Passed Through Straits of Magellan.

Santiago, Chile, Nov. 10.—The British cruiser Glasgow, which was engaged with the German squadron in battle off the Chilean coast Sunday, November 1, and the British transport Otranto, have passed Delgada Point light in the Straits of Magellan, bound for the Falkland islands, a British possession to the east of the extreme southern point of South America.

This information is contained in advices received here by the admiralty from the naval authorities in the Straits of Magellan, who said they had seen the Glasgow and the Otranto passing through the straits toward the Atlantic.

After the cruiser Good Hope had been sunk by the Germans and the Monmouth was so badly damaged she appeared unable to steam away, according to the British admiralty report of the sea fight of Chile, the Glasgow accompanied her as she drifted into the darkness. The admiralty said the Glasgow was not extensively damaged and had very few casualties, although during the battle she had fought the Leipzig and the Dresden, while the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau were taking care of the two larger vessels. The Otranto, the admiralty said, was not engaged in the fight.

London, Nov. 10.—Scenes of extraordinary enthusiasm were witnessed at the inaugural banquet of the new lord mayor of London, Sir Charles Johnston, who succeeds Sir Thomas V. Swire.

Guillford has been the scene of many civic and national functions in the past 500 years, but seldom has there been one which so strongly appealed to the popular imagination. The guests, who numbered a thousand and included statesmen, diplomats and financiers, entered the civic headquarters of London between two lines of khaki-clad riflemen. As each dignitary entered the reception hall he was greeted with shouts of cheer, but the real enthusiasm was reserved for

Berlin, via The Hague and London, Nov. 10, 10:20 a. m.—Another Russian repulse on the blood-drenched, trench-scarred hills of the eastern frontier of East Prussia was reported from Gumbinnen under date of Nov. 8.

Simultaneously with the operations against the main German army under General von Hindenburg on the line of the river Warthe, the Russians attempted to break into East Prussia by the old route south of Wirballen but were met at the frontier by General von Moegen's army and after very heavy fighting were driven back across the frontier.

Summing up, the statement says: "The day was marked by the checking of the German attack in considerable force to the south of Ypres, and by perceptible progress on the part of the French forces in the vicinity of Bixchoote and between Ypres and Arrmentieres. On the front also the British troops repulsed all the German attacks with ease."

SEEK STRANGER IN DEATH CASE.

Who Drove Murdered Man's Team to Hotel at South Paris, Me.

South Paris, Me., Nov. 10.—Not much credence was placed by Sheriff William O. Frothingham in statements that Thomas E. Proce, the man murdered and robbed Saturday night within a few miles of the Paris Hill boarding house, to which he was returning by team after an absence of two months at Presque Isle, was a detective or that he was killed by a criminal for whom he was supposed to have been searching for months.

He was more interested to ascertain the whereabouts of a man of 35 or 40 years, who registered at a hotel at "William Dunn of Jay, Maine," late Saturday night after leaving Proce's horse and carriage in the stable, and in whose room an excellent photographic likeness of Proce was found concealed yesterday.

His description with a request for his detention has been sent broadcast by the sheriff.

Mrs. Abbie Rawson of Paris Hill, whose daughter, Mrs. Annie Frye, was to have been married to Proce on Thanksgiving day, stated positively yesterday that Proce was a private detective and that he had for months been traveling about from place to place disguised as a laborer, while trying to kill him.

She said his father was Charles Proce, a Washington street liquor dealer in Boston. Neither man, however, appears in the Boston city directory, no detective named Proce is known at any of the principal agencies or by the Boston police, she said.

Proce was born in England 25 years ago, and had seven brothers and sisters, some of whom live in Boston. One married a Judge Hall of Boston, according to Mrs. Rawson, Proce, she said, was called "Blondie" Proce in Boston as an account of his light hair.

$10,000 FIRE AT ST. JOHNSBURY.

Wood-working Department of O. V. Hooker & Son Burned Out.

St. Johnsbury, Nov. 10.—The wood working department of O. V. Hooker & Son, machine manufacturing, was burned yesterday afternoon with a loss of about $10,000. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is thought it caught from a chimney. The wood shop is on the second floor and the fire got such a headway that this floor was practically destroyed. The machine shop underneath was badly damaged by war. The loss is covered by insurance. The firemen did good work in confining the fire to the building, where it started. It looked at first that the blaze might be communicated to the large grain elevators in close proximity.

BROKEN SHAFT STARTED HORSE.

Thomas Mongeon, Jr., the Driver, Was Quite Badly Hurt.

Winoski, Nov. 10.—Thomas Mongeon, Jr., was badly injured about the body yesterday when his horse became frightened and ran away. Mr. Mongeon was going down West lane when the shaft broke and dropped to the horse's leg. The young man tried to hold the horse, which became unmanageable, tipping the wagon over onto Mr. Mongeon. Freed from the wagon the horse speeded on. Mr. Mongeon was picked up and brought to his home, where he was resting comfortably as could be expected last evening. The full extent of the injuries could not be learned last evening, but he suffered a severe bruise to one shoulder and was possibly injured internally.

Secretary Fred W. Sutter of the quinquennial international association, has gone to Philadelphia, where he will represent the organization in the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor. This year Mr. Sutter is the only delegate to go from the Barre granite district, although the granite cutters and other trades unions are represented in the convention by delegates. According to early reports from Philadelphia the delegations this year represent more than 2,000,000 organized workmen, a considerable gain over the figures of last year. Secretary Sutter plans to remain at the convention adjourns at the end of his session. Afterward he will attend a building trades council and before returning to Barre at the expiration of three weeks he will visit several of the quarrying branches in West Virginia and elsewhere.

Stock dealers hereabouts have not begun to worry over the quarantine restrictions placed on several of the New England states as a result of the appearance of the foot and mouth disease. Likewise railroad men here in the city do not fear that the precautionary measures adopted by the authorities in the agricultural department at Washington will affect the cattle shipments from this point. Most of the shipments from Barre are made each Friday and dealers and freight agents alike are making the usual preparations for consignments at the coming week end. While the quarantine orders applicable to Massachusetts, into which state most of the local shipments are made, are being strictly enforced, the quarantine applies only to cattle that are to remain in that state some time after their arrival at the stock yards. Local stock buyers ship their cattle for immediate slaughter, and as long as such are so marked for immediate slaughter, the authorities do not interfere.

The colder weather in the infected states, it was believed, would tend to check the epidemic.

Reports from field agents in Indiana and Michigan led to expressions of hope at the department that the epidemic in those states has been brought under control.

Entering the station, he spoke to the officers, took a revolver from a drawer in his desk, and without saying another word, fired a shot through his head.

ARE TRAILING VERMONT DEER

Open Season in the Green Mountain State Opened This Morning

ORANGE MAN REPORTS FIRST BUCK FALLEN

Large Number of Nimrods Went into the Woods This Morning

Vermont woods bristled with the guns of many deer hunters to-day. At 5 o'clock this morning the open season for deer established by statutory provision began, and dawn saw a few thousand nimrods ready to begin the hunt. Signs augur favorably, or unfavorably, according to the viewpoint, for one of the heaviest slaughters in several years. Men who have tramped the woods for many years agree that conditions were never better for a successful deer quest.

Early reports from the most popular hunting grounds indicate that the mortality among bucks will not be marked by any falling-off in the season opened to-day. The summer months saw the deer in a very friendly mood and seasonable resorts in Vermont, especially along the shore of Lake Champlain and smaller bodies of water, say that tourists saw more deer in the warm months of 1914 than in any before. Thanks to a legislature of other days, the ban on the ruthless killing of does is still operative. With reference to the legal restrictions on deer slaying, excerpts from the public statutes of 1912 are given here:

"Open Season.—Wild deer having horns not less than three inches in length may be captured or taken from Nov. 10 to Dec. 1, after 5 a. m. and before 5 p. m., both dates inclusive and Sundays excepted."

"Law.—A person may take one such wild deer in an open season. He shall promptly report such taking and exhibit the animal's head to the nearest game warden or to some person deputized by the commissioner to receive such reports, the provisions of this section not applying to deer on private reserves. Wild deer shall not be taken by aid of a snare, trap, salt lick, jack or other light, nor shall such devices be used to entrap or entice deer; nor shall deer be hunted by dogs."

Other statutory provisions countenance the purchase and sale of deer carcasses and provide for the transportation of deer meat.

Here in Barre there was the usual exodus of hunters for hunting spots of their own choosing. Men who have pursued big game for many years say that the big killing will not come until a light fall of snow permits the nimrod to track his quarry. This prediction may be partially discounted by the fact that in past years the bulk of the slaughter has been completed by mid-season. It is a matter of general knowledge, however, that a covering of snow greatly enhances the hunter's chances for success. Local sportsmen for the most part confine their hunting operations to Washington and Windsor counties. Last year Washington county was well toward the top of the list in point of mortality among deer in the open season. Windsor county was nearer the top and so it happens that a goodly portion of Barre hunters like for hunting camps on the ridge which extends across the map of Windsor county. Roxbury and Rochester mountains are both the goals for many would-be deer hunters. Others have selected the mountainous region around Pittsfield. Others still are hunting in the vicinity of Waterbury and Camel's Hump, where a delegation of more than ordinary size set out this forenoon to scour the hunting grounds in Groton and elsewhere in that region.

The automobile is one of the most important factors in facilitating the movements of the hunter. Motor vehicles in recent years have brought some of the finest hunting grounds in Vermont within reach of the business man. With a car that is working as good cars should, a man can steal away for a day and bring back a supply of venison from regions hitherto considered inaccessible by reason of the distances which separated them from centers of population. Nearly 600 hunting licenses were granted in Barre from July 3 to Nov. 10.

First Buck Reported in Orange.

Orange, Nov. 10.—Denn E. Peake was the first hunter to score this morning, bringing down a fine six-point buck, weighing 200 pounds, at about 6:30 o'clock.

VERMONT BUSINESS TROUBLE.

Insolvent Petition Against Albert L. Morse, Rochester Lumber Dealer.

Rochester, Nov. 10.—A petition in an involuntary bankruptcy case against Albert L. Morse of Massachusetts, who manufactures lumber in Rochester, this state, was filed yesterday in the office in this city of Clark F. S. Pratt of the United States court. The petitioners are James A. Graham of Bethel, who presents a claim of $23,450, Percy W. Gove of Stockbridge, who claims $272, and Glen R. Fish of Stockbridge, who has an account for $12,323. William B. Bickel is counsel for the petitioners.

It is alleged that Mr. Morse committed an act of bankruptcy on July 11, 1914, by transferring to Thomas J. Worcester $1,700 through a mortgage, thereby preferring him over other creditors.

Another act of bankruptcy is alleged on August 23, 1914, when Mr. Morse is said to have permitted Charles E. Burt and Henry T. Faymoun to finance a mortgage gaining possession of certain crops.

A voluntary petition has been filed by John Nash of Bennington, who claims that his liabilities are $5,000 and that he has assets of $275, with $400 cash.
